“ My cousin Tata. That’s what we all called her growing up. When I think of Tata, I remember the sister with the thickest long hair of all. Since she was the oldest girl, she also had her own room. Back in the 70’s our cousins were the only friends we had. I remember when I would spend the nights on Saturday I looked forward to sleeping with her watch her nighttime routine because the next day we had to go to mass. She had a beautiful dresser with a chair and she would start working on her Dubi Dubi. A perfectionist. When she took it out in the morning her hair was so straight, shiny and wavy. For big events my mom did everybody’s hair. Tata’s was the first one always because it took the longest to dry after the rollers were on. I also remember when she worked at a clinic that was located inside the same building our uncle & grandparents. She looks so cute in her lab coat. I will hold all those beautiful memories in my heart always. ❤️🙏
